Shooting suspect is named

■ Shooting victim released from hospital; ex-employee of Grocery Outlet is sought for attempting to rob the store last week

By Steve Marschke

The West Sacramento Police Department has obtained an arrest warrant in last Tuesday's (May 6) attempted robbery and shooting at the Grocery Outlet on West Capitol Ave. in the Country West shopping center.

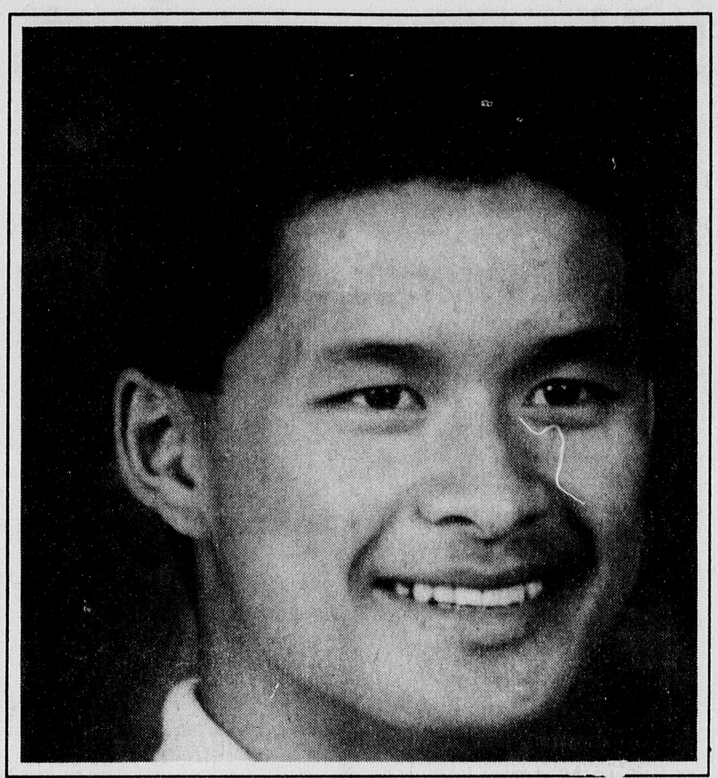
Police are looking for Lo Choi Saelee, 22.

Lt. David Farmer of the West Sacramento Police Department identified Saelee as a "past employee" of the store.

"I don't want to go into details (of the investigation), but we had enough information to get an arrest warrant," said Farmer.

Saelee is considered armed and dangerous. He is 5' 6" tall, weighs 150 pounds, has brown eyes and black hair. He was last seen leaving his parents' home on 2nd Ave. in Sacramento in the company of his girlfriend, identified as "Kelly," in a black 1993 Toyota pickup truck.

Anyone with information on his whereabouts is asked to call 372-2461 (the police office of criminal investigations) or 375-6474 (police dispatch).



Wanted: Lo Choi Saelee, 22

Last week's attempted robbery of the Grocery Outlet occurred at about 5:40 a.m. on May 6, when a lone gunman dressed in dark clothes and a ski mask knocked on a rear door at the store. Believing a morning delivery was being made, an employee opened the door.

The gunman herded two nearby employees into a walk-in freezer and went to bring two other employees to the same location. When returning, he confronted one of the first two employees, 25-year old Anthony Cavazos, who had escaped from the freezer.

The gunman fired his handgun twice at Cavazos, hitting him once in the chest. He then fled, apparently without taking anything from the store.

Cavazos underwent several hours of surgery at the UCD Medical Center in Sacramento, at first listed in critical condition. He has since been released from the hospital.

Fire damages home fixed by volunteers two weeks earlier

Last month, more than 50 volunteers headed up a project to renovate the Todhunter Ave. home of 78-year old Dorothea Andrade of West Sacramento, who could not afford the project herself. The work was part of the Sacramento area's annual "Christmas in April" project, and Andrade drew the lead sponsorship of The Money Store corporation.

On April 26, Andrade's home was decked out with new siding, roof, kitchen cabinets, fence and paint.

Last week, the work was erased by fire.

At about 9:30 in the morning on Wednesday, a fire started among rubbish in the backyard and spread to Andrade's home, badly damaging it. Because Andrade is on a fixed income, she did not have homeowner's insurance to cover the damage.

The public is being asked to help put Andrade's home back together again.

Robert Terry of the Money Store has started a trust fund for repairs.

Donations may be sent to the "Christmas in April/The Money Store Trust Fund," Account 9180051220, for Mrs. Dorothea Andrade, California Federal Bank, 1116 Alhambra Blvd., Sacramento, CA 95816.

City's $30,000 deal with Chamber of Commerce approved by EDAC

■ Following a heated debate with members of the city's economic development advisory committee (EDAC), the chamber of commerce appears to have an agreement for a $30,000 contract for city services

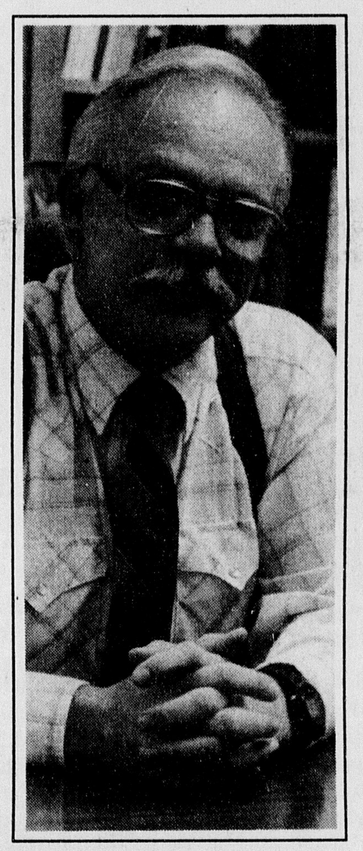
By Steve Marschke

Working through a number of issues raised by members of the city's economic development advisory committee, the West Sacramento Chamber of Commerce reached an agreement last Thursday for a possible new $30,000 city contract for fiscal year 1997-98.

EDAC members had questioned how well the chamber had performed on its previous $20,000 contract, and negotiated with chamber officials in several meetings.

"There were several items newer members of the committee were not that happy with," said Steve Roberts, executive director of the chamber. "While we feel we fulfilled the spirit of the previous contract, we agreed to produce a new city map, a new hotel and motel guide and a new restaurant guide outside the contract."

These were among several items EDAC members had expressed concern about not being done in the last fiscal year. In addition, and at the chamber's request, the new contract calls for an additional $10,000 for a total of $30,000 to be paid from the city in the next year. In return, the chamber has proposed taking on additional duties in the name of helping to market West Sacramento, including attracting a circus (now planned for a date next month) to the city.



STEVE ROBERTS
Executive Director
West Sacramento
Chamber of Commerce

The new contract will go to the city council for approval.

"It's an agreement that serves the community well," said Roberts. "Also, we set timelines for everything in the new contract, and that is something we haven't done before."

"They had two meetings and they really worked things out well," said EDAC member Helena Helmold. "Everybody was happy with it, EDAC and the chamber."

When the city incorporated in 1987, West Sacramento officials agreed to provide the local chamber of commerce with a flat grant every year to help fund the business leader's group. This was later changed to a "contract for services," requiring the chamber to organize local community events such as a traditional annual parade, serve as a contact point for inquiries about the city of West Sacramento, and other duties.

The contract is not open to other service providers, and is somewhat unique in the region.

Bridge set for early opening day

Building 'boom' may not follow as quickly as planned

■ Palamidessi Bridge to open in July, but Southport housing boom isn't expected this year

By Steve Marschke

Unusually fair weather has helped speed the expected completion date for the city's new Daniel C. Palamidessi Bridge spanning the barge canal and connecting the northern and southern halves of West Sacramento.

"I think we are looking at July 2 (for a bridge opening ceremony)," said Steve Patek, director of community development for the city.

Installing a new bridge has been viewed by the necessity of allowing new development in "Southport," the city's southern half, which is currently connected with the rest of West Sacramento by a two lane barge canal crossing on Jefferson Blvd.

The new bridge is expected to be a second connection between the two halves of the city for safety reasons. Currently, if Jefferson Bridge is closed due to an accident, Southport residents can only leave their neighborhood for downtown West Sacramento or downtown Sacramento by first driving south over 10 miles to a Sacramento River crossing, and then travelling back northwards on the Sacramento side of the river.

The new Palamidessi Bridge will connect Jefferson Blvd. traffic at a new intersection near the Arlington Oaks subdivision (north of Linden Road). The bridge will move traffic from that intersection to the Harbor Blvd./Industrial Blvd. region of West Sacramento. Drivers will not be able to use the new bridge to travel directly between Southport and downtown West Sacramento or Sacramento.

But once the new bridge is in place, the city's self-imposed building moratorium in Southport is expected to be lifted.

'I don't foresee anybody building this year. I thought we would have Lewis Homes, Gateway and perhaps Bayside starting.'

Steve Patek
Community Development Director

"When the bridge is opened, I will probably go to the council and ask them to make a finding that the safety issue has been addressed," said Patek.

This long-awaited milestone has been expected to open a housing boom for the city. But Patek said that the region's sluggish economic conditions, combined with the time of the season during which the bridge will be opened, will likely mean no housing boom in Southport in 1997.

"We have approved tentative parcel maps for 3,500 (new housing) lots," he said. "But a lot of those are fairly far away (from other developments) and have infrastructure problems. They are probably going to need somebody like Gateway or Lewis Homes up in the north part of Southport to go first."

The Gateway project is located on the east side of Jefferson Blvd. and close to the Stone Lock Bridge on Jefferson Blvd. Lewis Homes owns property near Higgins Rd. and Jefferson.

The more southern planned developments, such as Stanford Ranch's property, would have to pay high expenses in bringing roads, sewers, water lines and other "infrastructure" to their property if they do not wait for other developments to fill in the rural areas first, he explained.

"I don't foresee anybody building this year," he added. "I thought we would have Lewis Homes, Gateway and perhaps Bayside starting."

Patek said it is difficult to project how many homes will be built over the next few years, since that depends a lot on the future housing market, but that growth will probably start slowly in 1998 and then build.

"If next year is the first year of building, then I'd expect 100 to 200 homes per year, continuing to increase to 200-300 homes the second year and beyond."

Local home and cars hit by gunfire

■ No suspects and no one hurt in evening shooting on Franklynn Way

By Steve Marschke

Roughly a dozen gunshots were reported on Franklynn Way in West Sacramento at about 5:35 p.m. Monday. But although a house and two vehicles were struck by bullets, no injuries were reported.

"We don't know who we're looking for yet," said Lt. Dave Farmer of the West Sacramento Police Department. "The (suspect) was on a bicycle. We are in the middle of that investigation."

Several nearby residents reported the gunfire, and one report said three suspects were seen.

Farmer did not offer any immediate speculation on possible motives or targets of the shooting when contacted Tuesday.

Campaign reform to get another look

The West Sacramento City Council last week directed their staff to go back to the drawing boards and take a broader look at ways the city could opt to tighten its political campaign rules.

As part of a workshop on State Prop. 208, which passed in November, city staff and attorneys prepared a look at specifically how to make West Sacramento's campaign donation limit mesh with the new state law. But council member Greg Potnick, crediting his colleague Wes Beers for leadership on the issue, said the council wants something different.

"The way that staff was trying to do this was to reconcile the new law with our existing law, which was backwards," said Potnick.

Instead, the council wanted to look at the entire campaign reform issue "and develop a community consensus on where we would like to be in terms of campaign reform."

Potnick said this request may result in a "full blown special meeting" on the campaign reform issue some weeks in the future.

Blood drive to be held on May 23 at city hall

From Kryss Rankin
City of West Sacramento

The city of West Sacramento will be sponsoring a blood drive for the Sacramento Blood Center on Friday, May 23 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. The drive will be located on the first floor of City Hall, 2101 Stone Blvd.

Blood donations touch the lives of patients suffering from cancer of leukemia, new mothers and babies, hemophiliacs and people with other blood diseases, burn and accident victims, and more. Because each pint of blood can be separated into its various components, each pint can help up to three patients in need.

Giving blood is safe -- you cannot get AIDS or any other disease through the donation process. Sterile needles are used only once and then discarded. Donors must be at least 17 years of age, weigh at least 110 pounds and be in good health.

To thank and encourage participants, each donor will be entered into a raffle for prizes donated by GT's Tires & Wheels, Lighthouse Country Club, Pacific Bell, the City of West Sacramento, and more.

For more information or to make an appointment, please contact the City of West Sacramento's recycling division at 373-5893.

Sacto approves airport bus service

From Yolo County Transit Authority

On a vote of five to two, the Sacramento Regional Transit Board Monday night gave the go-ahead to the Yolo County Transit Authority (YCTA) to run their enhanced inter-city service, including a stop at Sacramento International Airport. This action by the RT Board culminated over six years of efforts by YCTA to provide this service.

Because of a transfer agreement between the two transit providers, and because of state legislation, YCTA needed to obtain RT's permission to operate a service within the RT district which will pick up and deliver Sacramento residents. Staff from the two transit agencies have worked for the past month to develop conditions which would be agreeable to both boards, which will spell out protections for each agency's funding and operations, and define their responsibilities. Even though RT staff recommended agreeing to the service, this was the second RT Board meeting needed for the board members to have all their questions answered and to feel some level of comfort with allowing another transit provider to operate within their district. The YCTA Board will consider the conditions at their May 28 Board meeting, but YCTA staff expect approval.

According to YCTA Executive Director Terry Bassett "We are very pleased with the RT Board's action to authorize this service. We have worked a long time to realize this goal. Besides the airport stop, improvements in transit service for Yolo County residents include longer service days, Sunday service in Woodland, and direct service between Woodland and Sacramento throughout the day. Also benefitting will be riders on the express services between Davis and Sacramento and Woodland and Sacramento, because they will have more options for return trips."

These service improvements were made possible by a federal grant for $920,000 for the two-year demonstration project. Also contributing funding is the Yolo/Solano Air Quality Management District and the cities and county. YCTA officials hope to carry as many as 200,000 additional riders on the increased inter-city service, and also will test the use of transit by airport employees and travelers.

This transit service is viewed by many members of the environmental community and transit advocates as an important first step towards regional cooperation on one of many issues which concern all the residents of the Sacramento region. The service is expected to start early this summer.

Still undefeated, Raider tennis squad clinches title

From River City High School

For the second time in as many years, the River City High School Tennis Team has captured the championship of the Golden Empire League. Last Tuesday's 6-3 win at Colfax clinched no worse than a tie for first and Thursday's 9-0 shutout of Lincoln assured the Raiders their second straight outright G.E.L. banner. Only tomorrow's match at Lindhurst stands between R.C. and an undefeated 10 win, no loss league record. Coach Dave Brooks said that despite having the league title all wrapped up, motivation for the regular season finale with the second place Blazers should not be a problem. "We knew heading into this season that everybody in the G.E.L. would be chasing after us and our goal following last year's 11-1 league championship was to be undefeated G.E.L. champs this year. We'll be ready for the Lindhurst trip."

Tuesday's 6 to 3 win at Colfax was the closet match yet for the Raiders in league play. R.C. played without #1 boys singles player Ahmad Fazel, but #2 Jeff Wright moved up and played superbly in defeating the Falcons' top player, Matt Kleinke, 6-4, 6-1. Peter Santizo didn't fare so well, however, playing at #2 singles instead of his normal mixed doubles, falling 1-6, 3-6. Girls singles player Meuy Saechao (#1) and Douangchanh Lattasima (#2) won decisively 6-2, 6-1 and 6-1, 6-0, respectively. Neither has lost a match all year, nor have they dropped a set in G.E.L. competition. Doubles victories were recorded by Sarom Phoung and Phoungeun Souvannaphoungeun at #1 boys, Bethany Monroe and Aenoy Xayasone at #1 girls, and Khonthavy Phouanglasy and Aaron Potnick in mixed.

Thursday's clincher against the Lincoln Zebras was the sixth shutout registered by the Raiders in their nine league matches. Saechao and Lattasima did not lose a single game between them and Fazel returned to win a marathon match at #1 boys singles. Trailing Lincoln's Dan Grunewald 3-6, 4-5, Fazel pulled out the second set 7-5 and then survived a third set tiebreaker 7 points to 3 to earn the victory.

Following tomorrow's match at Lindhurst, the Raiders will turn their attention to the G.E.L. Tournament next Monday and Tuesday. On Monday, each team in the league will send two boys and two girls to play singles, while Tuesday has each school sending a pair of mixed, boys, and girls doubles teams. Should a player/team reach the final match in any of the five events, they would then qualify for the Sac-Joaquin Section Division III Tournament in Stockton next Wednesday.

The team playoffs will begin the following week, with R.C. hosting a quarterfinal match on May 27.

The Sports Insider

By Richard Novoa

The San Francisco Giants (21-13) are currently tied for first place with the Rockies but last in the league in attendance, averaging 14,936 fans through 22 home dates. The A's (15-23), who share the worst record in the American League and are currently on a six game losing streak, are averaging 15,575 fans through 15 home dates. Do you think it has something to do with the climate at the stadium?

The Utah Jazz finished off the Los Angeles Lakers four games to one in their best-of-seven series, and move on to the Western Conference finals for the fourth time in six years. The Jazz are led by the Dynamic Duo of Karl Malone and John Stockton, and will face the winner of the Houston vs. Seattle series (Houston leads three games to one at press time).

Utah has the home court advantage in this series and you can expect these two teams to go seven games. The Dynamic Duo will have to tangle with the Three Musketeers, in All-Stars "Sir" Charles Barkley, Hakeem "The Dream" Olajuwon, and Clyde "The Glide" Drexler.

The funny thing about the Rockets is they are on the brink of the Western Conference finals and they are being led by rookie point guard Matt "No Nickname" Maloney. He is averaging 17.7 points and shooting over 50 percent from the three-point range.

In the Eastern Conference finals, the Bulls and Knicks both are leading their series three games to one. The Bulls should finish off the Hawks on Tuesday night and the Knicks need one more victory to close out the series against the Miami Heat. The Bulls should make it to the championship series, but the Knicks could present a problem.

This could be the year the Bulls get upset by a young and inexperienced New York team. The Bulls in six games!

News-Ledger Editorial

A golden opportunity

Following what seems to have been a misunderstanding between some city council members and city staff, West Sacramento seems to be on the right path towards exploring the issue of local campaign reform.

Council members Wes Beers and Christopher Cabaldon, in particular, have been vocal about the need for more stringent rules in West Sacramento to prevent some of the abuse which occurs in every city council election or ballot measure vote.

The city took a step in this direction several years ago, imposing a $250 limit on individual contributions to a campaign in an attempt to limit the ability of a few well-heeled special interests to "buy" an election. That donation limit was modified by the passage of State Prop. 208 in November, which limits individual donations to $100 (with some important exceptions).

City staff prepared a report on how to reconcile the two laws last week, but the council let it be known that they wanted a look at the bigger picture.

When the matter returns for a special workshop sometime in the next few months, the local public will have a chance to see what other options there are in reforming campaigns. Some of the ideas which could be explored include mandating that every campaign keep its financial contributions and expenditures posted up-to-date for public access on the internet, setting total campaign spending limits, requiring public officials to disclose whether they have received a campaign contribution from one of the parties in a matter before them for a decision, and trying to keep tabs on "independent" campaign expenditures that support some candidate or ballot position.

This last issue may be the trickiest and most important of all.

Under current law, it appears that while a candidate or ballot measure sponsor may be restricted from getting huge donations from special interest groups, those same special interest groups can spend their money on the candidate or ballot position in any quantity they want, so long as they are not caught "communicating" with the candidate or ballot campaign.

This is a huge special interest loophole that will prove to be troublesome statewide, in the wake of Prop. 208.

Even in West Sacramento's short history, there are a number of examples of trouble and borderline election fraud made possible by a virtually nonexistent set of campaign restrictions. Without an intelligent look and intelligent action on campaign reform, much more damage will follow.

With 1997 as a non-campaign year for West Sacramento, the timing is perfect for that action.

Guest commentary:

How creativity in recycling can improve a company's profits

By Daniel G. Pennington
Chairman
California Integrated Waste Management Board

Imagine a way you can add $1 million a year to your company's bottom line and be good to the environment as well. It's not as hard as you might think. Many companies around California and across America are helping improve the environment and their profit margins. Amdahl Corp., a Sunnyvale, Calif.-based manufacturer of mainframe computers, is one such company.

Amdahl is one of a growing number of businesses, large and small, that is learning that recycling and reusing materials is a major asset to company revenues. Instead of simply throwing away old components, packaging materials, office paper, and other material, Amdahl and companies like it are helping lead the way toward a new and better way of dealing with "waste."

Here in California, we're especially conscious of the need to revolutionize waste disposal methods. Legislation passed in 1989 requires cities and counties around the state to divert fully half their solid waste away from landfills by the year 2000. We've met the first benchmark -- 25 percent diversion in 1995 -- but we all recognize that we have a long way to go. In fact, to reach our 50 percent goal, Californians will need to divert another 14 million to 19 million tons of solid waste a year by 2000. Because California's 1 million businesses generate about half the state's solid waste, business cooperation is absolutely essential if the state is to reach its goal.

Fortunately, the Integrated Waste Management Board, the state agency that is responsible for overseeing this ambitious effort, recognizes that simply mandating waste reduction won't work. We know that the only way that businesses and individuals will recycle, reuse products, and otherwise reduce their waste generation is if it makes sense to do so, both environmentally and economically.

Last year, the Waste Board honored more than 300 businesses -- from Fortune 500 mainstays to small concerns employing only a handful of people -- through its Waste Reduction Awards Program. Since 1993, more than 1,000 California businesses have received WRAP awards for their efforts to reduce waste. In 1995, we expanded this program to honor the ten most outstanding examples of waste reduction through our "WRAP of the Year" program. The kinds of cost savings these companies have enjoyed are truly amazing:

1) Amdahl finds uses for practically everything it no longer needs, from outdated equipment to waste paper to foam and plastic packaging. The company has set aside a warehouse in which serviceable equipment such as outdated PCs are set aside to be sold or donated to local schools and non-profits; packaging materials, cardboard, paper, and other materials are sold to area recyclers; and workers dismantle components to extract parts that can be sold. Between the revenues these sales generate and the disposal costs the company avoids, the bottom line to shareholders was some $1 million last year.

2) The Walt Disney Co.'s Envrionmentality program actively promotes reuse and recycling at the company's these parks, resorts, studios and offices -- and also encourages its 21,000 California cast members to do so at home. Company-wide recycling reached an all-time high of 80,000 tons in 1995, and just one part of the program -- a campaign to reuse sets used in producing movies and television shows -- saved the company $528,000 in one year.

3) South Bay Medical Center in Redondo Beach aggressively recycles everything from sharps containers to placentas. The hospital also has become a multi-service recycling center for the community, offering Christmas tree recycling, a used motor oil drop-off station, and sponsors a beach clean-up day. These efforts have slashed their disposal costs in half, a savings of more than $150,000 since the program began.

4) Dole Fresh Vegetables, Inc., used to throw away more than 46,000 tons of unsuitable vegetables a year. Now the company's Salinas operation composts the material, saving the company $1.12 million a year in dumping fees. By reusing and recycling wooden pallets and bins, Dole saves another $130,000 a year.

Examples like these are everywhere. The Waste Board, along with your local city or county recycling coordinator or solid waste manager, can help your business learn more about the economic benefits and how to start up your own recycling program. By taking a little bit of time and effort to recycle and reuse, businesses are helping extend the lifespan of California's landfills, helping their local economies, and making money by helping the environment.

And after all, that's the bottom line.

WASHINGTON NEWS ITEMS

The Sacramento River registered 3 feet 4 inches, United States gauge at the Southern Pacific bridge yesterday. This measurement was taken at low tide and is not an indication of the gauge of the stream at high tide, for at this writing there is an average raise of about one foot at every high tide.

Frank Janik moved his family into the service station he built lately across the street from West Sacramento headquarters. Janik is a millwright by trade, having learned his business in the old country, and the job completed by him lately is a credit to any builder. With his wife he intends to make his future home in the district and for a business will have the oil station, serving gas, oils and other necessities for automobiles. In a week or two he expects to install a soft drink stand near the station, selling ice cream, tobacco, notions and other household necessities. The living quarters of the station consist of three rooms, beautifully fitted with Janik's handiwork.

Mrs. B. Moss has returned to her home from Pacific Grove, where she spent a few weeks recuperating. She was greatly benefitted by the visit to the seashore and may return there some time in the near future.

E. L. Blackington has been confined to his home for the past few days with a dose of rheumatism. Yesterday he was somewhat improved but is still confined to his home.

At the auto service station on Fifth street, conducted by Fraser & Doyle, a rootbeer stand has been set up and will be in charge of another man, in addition to the force already at work at the station. It is the intention of these boys to give the best possible service, and with a growing trade they felt that the great amount of travel on the highway warranted the placing of a rootbeer stand at the station.

Miss Annie Nolan of San Francisco and Miss Mollie Armstrong of Slough House were visitors at the Leinberger home last Tuesday. They returned to their individual homes on Wednesday evening.

G. E. Leinberger, father of Walter Leinberger, with his two daughters, left Sacramento last Monday to visit Canada and be present at a convention of the air brake officials of the several roads in Canada and the United States. Following the convention he and his two daughters will travel throughout the east for several weeks, visiting at New York, Philadelphia, Washington, New Orleans and other points of interest. At the Southern Pacific depot Monday evening a great crowd of friends assembled to bid them farewell, so that it appeared to those who were not on the inside that Leinberger was about to be married again. They do not expect to return to their home in Sacramento for about two months.

The Canteen Oil Station, just west of the subway at the end of Fifth street, has established a rootbeer station in a part of the building. In this place also the proprietors, Partridge & McNally, will also maintain a place for soft drinks, ice cream and other summer delicacies. A growing trade has prompted these men to expand their business, for since they have been in the location they have continuously moved ahead with the approval of the traveling public and the people of the neighborhood who know them.

A Japanese team of baseball players direct from Japan will play an all-star team picked from Washington and Sacramento players at the ball grounds in West Sacramento next Sunday.

The visiting team learned to play in Japan and it is going to be a curiosity for many to see if they really play baseball as it should be played. This visiting team believes itself capable of meeting some of the professionals and the game next Sunday will be witnessed by several great players of Sacramento to gauge the strength of the visitors.

Edward Butters and family of Rio Vista spent last Sunday in Washington as the house guests of friends and relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Gallagher and family of Topeka, Kansas, are spending an extended visit in Washington as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Dupzyk.

Mrs. Frank De Riso, Sr., is spending a short while in Oakland on a combined business and pleasure trip.

A party composed of Mrs. Fred Gale, Frank Gale and Jack Dassonville spent last Tuesday in San Francisco.

Miss Stacey Armstrong, county supervisor of music, and Miss M. Stewart, county supervisor of English, were visitors this week in the Washington school from their offices in Woodland.

Harley Austin, who has been spending a short while in Colusa on business, returned to his Washington home.

L. E. Sorrell, who has been residing in the Moffitt home in Washington, has purchased a home in Hagginwood, which he is now occupying.

Miss Ethel Cook, who has been spending the past week in Washington visiting with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Cook, returned last Sunday to Napa to resume her duties as a teacher in one of the schools.

Mrs. William Russell, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Eagan and Ray Russell spent last Sunday at Wilbur Hot Springs on a pleasure trip.

Mrs. Celia Hart, who has been spending a few days in the Fresno section as the guest of friends, returned to her home.

Robert Gaskell, a resident of Los Angeles, is spending a short while in Washington visiting at the Noyes home.

Mrs. Ella May Muhm of San Francisco has returned to her home after visiting for a short while at the home of her mother, Mrs. James L. Clifton.

Mrs. Catherine Brown, who has been spending a short while in Lincoln visiting with friends, returned to her home.

Mrs. Neva Moore and daughter, Miss June Moore of San Francisco, spent Saturday in Washington dividing their time between the homes of Mrs. J. R. Williams and Mrs. I. K. Manchester.

Mrs. A. McManus of Roseville, who spent last Friday visiting at the home of Mrs. A. M. Cameron, returned to her home.

Wallace, young son of George Thomas, who was painfully burned about two weeks ago, is rapidly recovering.

WASHINGTON BOOSTERS' CLUB WILL HAVE CLEAN-UP AND PAINT-UP WEEK AS SOON AS PROPER ARRANGEMENTS CAN BE MADE

Although only a small attendance was present at the Washington Boosters Club last Tuesday at the town hall, many proposals were made for the advance and benefit of the community.

Attention was called again to the fact that automobile drivers after crossing the bridge from Sacramento and passing the public school building seem to have no regard for the speed limit, although road signs have been placed indicating that a school is to be passed. The secretary reported that notification had been sent to Supervisor Beardslee and he had been requested to ask traffic cops of the county to give the matter attention.

The membership committee of the club reported that no progress had been made in securing increased membership but promised that before next meeting there would be an improvement. One business man who had been reported as speaking in a deprecating way of the club was reported to have apologized.

The question of dues was left over until a committee on by-laws would report, which was expected to be next Tuesday evening.

Attention was called to the fact that a new survey of the town was being made and that the old stakes or monuments had been entirely obliterated.

To straighten up this question an original map of the town was brought forward which had been published in the Independent on November 6, 1914.

Complaint was made that the sidewalk from the end of the bridge to the town hall is now in poor condition, having been left that way when the county road was built from the end of the bridge north to Elizabeth street.

The secretary was instructed to write to the division superintendent of the Southern Pacific Company, calling attention to this matter and also calling the attention of Supervisor Beardslee to the question.

Subsequent action was taken in relation to the naming of a committee to interview the division superintendent of the Southern Pacific Company, asking his help in the matter.

The committee appointed by the chair consists of Mrs. P. A. Hart, Mrs. Ray Peek and Mrs. W. Painter.

Whether it be sewerage, decaying offal or smoke from the rice mills or refuse from the slaughter house or odor from the gas works in the Sacramento, the question was brought up that when a south wind blows there seems something in the air, especially in the evenings, that disturbs the nasal sensibilities of some people.

For a time the blame was thrown on the slaughter house, then on the rice mills, again on the gas works and finally on the sewerage from Sacramento.

At any rate it was decided by the club that something must be done to abate the nuisance, for, at times, it becomes very obnoxious to the people. J. Pereira was appointed a committee of one to investigate conditions at the slaughter house and report at the next meeting of the club.

The question of garbage collection caused considerable comment. Piles of old cans lay around in the back yards of homes or are being thrown into the gutters by householders. On that account it was proposed that a clean-up day be held in the near future so that every householder can have hauled away everything that is detrimental or useless.

Supervisor Beardslee will be interviewed by Ray Peek to ask him to provide a hole or dumping ground where old cans and other refuse may be dumped.

Rev. Ellis Purlee of Sacramento made a wonderful talk on municipal advancement. He showed how an organization like the Boosters Club can be of material benefit to the community, but he wanted to see more of the men of the community present at the meetings.

T. D. M. Slaven, another business man of Sacramento, was present at the meeting and drew attention to the fact that Washington could grow, would grow, and was about to grow, if only the people would stand together and boost the community. Los Angeles was built on a desert, he said, and Chicago was built on a swamp.

Following his remarks, a committee consisting of J. Pereira, Ray Peek and P. A. Fitzgerald was appointed to induce the men of the community to attend the Boosters Club meetings.

Slaven also drew attention to the condition of the levee between the Southern Pacific bridge and the M street bridge. Here could be found any day or evening a bunch of loafers who simply passed time sunning themselves in a most unusual and unhealthy way. Some victims of canned heat can be found here stupidly dozing in the sunlight and this condition could easily be remedied, for if other towns were blessed with a similar condition there would be a beautiful park along the river fit for enjoyment of young and old.

By unanimous vote the thanks of the Boosters Club was extended to the strangers who addressed the club, after which refreshments were served by Mrs. J. McNevin.

TAX DELINQUENCIES DOWN TO MINIMUM

Woodland, April 30.—Tax delinquencies will be as light this year as ever before, according to the first survey of the records just made by County Tax Collector R. W. Woods. At the outset is seemed that there would be a heavy delinquent list, but the rush of Monday reduced all chances of this being an abnormal season. It reflects the fact that the property owners are able to meet their obligations and are prepared for an off year, such as this is promised to be because of the light rains.

CANALS BEING CLEARED OUT BY DRAG-LINE DREDGER

West of the main canal in a direct line west from the Catholic church in West Sacramento a drag line dredger is being operated by the John Phillips Company of Oakland, clearing out the drainage and reclamation canal that extends from that point to the western levee.

The dredger is operated on a 45 horsepower Holt caterpillar base and equipped to turn in any direction.

This dredger is also equipped with electric lighting so that it operates night and day with three shifs of men and two men to the shift.

The bucket used by the dredger is of three-quarter yard capacity and it is astonishing at what speed it moves along in clearing out the dirt and weeds that have practically closed the canal.

A great number of the canals throughout the district have been similarly cleaned and the work will continue as long as the funds available for that purpose will last.

Some of the larger canals that do not need cleaning so badly will be left over till next year when the work will be started again to finish all the canals in the district.

TEIXEIRA NEARLY ENTIRELY RECOVERED FROM BROKEN BACK

Woodland, April 30.—Manuel Teixeira, prominent in the Broderick district, who a year ago broke his backbone when a bale of hay fell upon him while he was assisting a neighbor in loading his produce, was in Woodland today visiting friends, practically a well man. He spent the best part of a year at hte Sisters' Hospital in Sacramento, with all odds against his recovery. Excepting for one of his legs being weak as a result of the unusual accident, he is in the best of health. Mrs Tixiera accompanied her husband to Woodland.

FILMING CORPORATION PLACES MANY LOCAL BOYS IN THE MOVIES

During several days of the past week and for several days to come several local boys have been working with Pauline Starke for the Fox Film Company, enacting the scenes of "The Man Without a Country," at the mouth of the American River.

Among those taking part in the show were Dave Barry, Seth Barry, P. Van Olinda, G. Mathena, Joe Eugene, E. Crow, Willie Dupzyk and Frank West.

The scenes were pictured at the junction of the American and Sacramento Rivers, where a crowd of over a hundred and fifty people in all were present to depict scenes that were originally enacted at the junction of the Ohio and Tennessee Rivers.

Barges, artfully constructed as replicas of those that were wont to float down the Ohio and Tennessee Rivers in the period at the beginning of the last century, when the region west of what is now Pennsylvania was termed the "Unknown West," have been floated past a battery of moving picture cameras, and then towed back again to repeat.

Men, women and children, garbed in the picturesque habilaments of the hardy pioneers of that day, with their equally picturesque household goods, have occupied these barges.

The moving picture prototype of Aaron Burr, the man whose killing of Alexander Hamilton in a duel in 1804 wrecked his political career and caused him to embark upon what at that time was considered a treasonable conspiracy to separate the West from the remainder of the United States and found a dynasty of his own, has landed and embarked; has talked "sedition" with Lieutenant Philip Nolan, all for the purpose of providing sequence leading up to picturing Nolan as "the Man Without a Country."

Four weeks ago Harry Bailey, business manager associated with the Fox Film Company, under the direction of Director Rowland V. Lee, came to Sacramento with a corps of artisans. The site at the juncture of the Sacramento and American Rivers, previously selected personally by Lee as the ideal location for his purpose, was transformed from a tree-studded section of wilderness into a beehive of activity.

Stage carpenters skilled in "make-believe" hewed logs and sawed planks, and within a space of three weeks an exact replica of Fort Massac, an outpost of the American army of 1805, which was located on the Ohio River at the junction with the Tennessee, was erected.

Scenic artists, experts in their line, supplanted the carpenters, and with the aid of paints and natural products, transformed the raw lumber into the appearance of the old fort and stockade, with moss-grown log walls, blockhouses at the corners, make-believe cannons, ponderous gates, barrack rooms, headquarters building, stores, a blacksmith shop, and even down to the seemingly inconsequential details of pens for oxen, sheep, hogs, chickens and horses.

Ordinary farm animals were used and the runaway, which, by the way, was filmed five or six times before the action was sufficiently co-related to suit Director Lee, was absolutely real.

In spite of the possibilities of injury to Hearne or to some of the other participants, and in spite of the fact that the runaway was repeated over and over again, even the horses escaped without a scratch.

WASHINGTON BABES MAKE FINE SHOWING AT CLINIC

Of sixty-two children censussed by the Red Cross of Yolo County a few weeks ago and varying between the ages of two and six years, forty-five were examined by a medical clinic held last Monday afternoon in the public school building.

Of the forty-five examined only two were found to be out of average weight or proportion for children of their age. One was found to be overweight and one two pounds under weight.

This is an excellent showing for the babes of the town and indicates not only splendid care on the part of the mothers, but an extremely healthy and sanitary condition in the community.

The balance of the sixty-two will be examined at a later date and a final report made to the Red Cross of Yolo County, who provided for the clinic.

The clinic consisted of Dr. Beebe and Dr. W. L. Bates of Woodland, accompanied by Miss Rozzie Carrow, Red Cross nurse of the county.

They reported before leaving for Woodland that the Washington clinic was the largest that had been in Yolo County and the results obtained in the way of prevailing conditions were better than found in any other section of the county.

At the meeting of the Washington Boosters Club last Tuesday night the thanks of the club were unanimously tendered to the members of the clinic and the secretary of the organization was requested to write to the members of the clinic, advising them of the action.

Celebrating pre-natal health through May 17

From Mary Jo Bryan, Coordinator
Yolo County Perinatal Substance Abuse Coalition

The Yolo County Board of Supervisors has proclaimed Mother's Day, May 11 and the following week as public awareness week for "Yolo County's Campaign for Alcohol and Drug-Free Pregnancy." The Board of Supervisors joins with the Perinatal Substance Abuse Coalition, the Tobacco Education Program and more than 30 Yolo County restaurants to use this occasion to promote healthier families in Yolo County.

Even though the U.S. Surgeon General has urged pregnant women not to drink, studies and survey still indicate that women continue to drink during pregnancy putting their babies at risk of permanent mental retardation (Fetal Alcohol Syndrome) and other physical and mental disabilities. Mother's Day offers an excellent opportunity to bring attention to the continual need for education and awareness to improve the health and well being of all Yolo County children and families.

Recent government statistics have determined the scope of maternal drug use. There is a higher incidence of legal drug use -- smoking and drinking -- than illicit drug use among pregnant women. Approximately one in five women said they smoked cigarettes or drank alcohol at some point during their pregnancy; slightly more than one in twenty admitted they had used marijuana or cocaine.

The prevention of perinatal use and abuse of alcohol, tobacco and other drugs should be considered a top priority for the local, state and national prevention efforts. Children deserve every opportunity to begin their lives as strong and healthy as possible.

In Yolo County no one agency alone can hope to affectively address the complex factors that contribute to the abuse of alcohol, tobacco and other drugs by pregnant women and the far reaching consequences felt by mother, child, family and society. For this reason, Yolo County's Perinatal Substance Abuse Coalition and the Tobacco Education Program have teamed up with local restaurants to get the message out that drinking alcohol, smoking and using drugs is not worth the risk to their own health or their babies well-being. In support of this public awareness campaign the following West Sacramento restaurants will offer a complimentary non-alcoholic beverage to pregnant women on Mother's Day, through May 17: Baker's Square; Carol's Restaurant; Denny's Restaurant; Huey's Diner; Salsa Mexican Restaurant; and Vince's Restaurant.

Jack-in-the-Box plans a return to West Sacto with site on Stillwater

By Steve Marschke

Although a Jack in the Box fast food restaurant previously went out of business near Harbor Blvd. and West Capitol Ave. in West Sacramento, a new one appears headed for the northwestern business district part of the city.

"The site is fairly close to the southeast corner of Reed and Stillwater," said Steve Patek, West Sacramento Community Development Director.

The site, which does not yet have a street address, consists of .83 acres. Last Thursday, the city planning commission approved a conditional use permit for the restaurant, which is expected to include a drive-through window.
